A Look at How the Department Protects and Serves Alabama Farmers and Consumers

ALABAMA AGRICULTURE MAGAZINE RELEASED

The Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries recently unveiled the premiere issue of Alabama Agriculture, a 72-page, comprehensive guide to the state's farms, food and forestry. The annual magazine serves as a primer for state legislators, business leaders and consumers about the impact of agriculture on the state's economy.

"Throughout 2011, farmers enjoyed some of the highest prices ever for the commodities they produce, including cotton, soybeans, corn, wheat, beef and poultry. We are one of America's largest producers of these commodities, thanks to Alabama's abundant resources of fresh water, fertile land and favorable climate," says John McMillan, Alabama Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries. "Alabama agriculture and agribusiness have a unique opportunity to meet a rapidly growing demand for food and fiber that will double in the next four decades."

The magazine, which is free to the public, also is intended to educate Alabama consumers about their food source and give a voice to the state's farmers. The magazine features original photography, friendly charts and graphs, and profiles of individual farmers. Articles focus on the state's main commodities—cotton, peanuts, catfish, beef and poultry—and other agriculture-based industries, such as forestry and agri-tourism, as well as innovations in technology and farm equipment.

The digital version of Alabama Agriculture magazine will be hosted at www.ALagriculture.com.

The magazine's online presence features farm-to-table recipes, agriculture facts and stats, videos, and interviews with farmers across the state. Copies of the Alabama Agriculture magazine are available at the Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries office at 1445 Federal Drive in Montgomery. A digital and tablet version also are available online at www.ALagriculture.com.

CENSUS OF AGRICULTURE

national decision making about:

- Competitive market pricing
- Farm services
- Transportation locations and marketing locations
- Environmental issues and conservation issues
- Farming trends
- Production practices
- Changing technologies
- And many other key issues facing agricultural communities.

Your Future.

Information from the Census of Agriculture is used in all types of agricultural planning and decision-making. Data, such as production expenses, market value of products and operator characteristics, are collected. This information helps USDA work with other organizations to develop short-term and long-term improvements, strategies and safeguards. Here are just a few examples of how the information is used to benefit your operation and community:

- Your county extension office uses the data in community planning to ensure you are getting the services you need.

- Companies use the statistics to see where to put the next feed store or equipment dealer.

- Lending institutions use the information to provide sufficient funds for operational loans.

- USDA uses the information to determine if its service centers are staffed at appropriate levels to assist farmers and ranchers.

Your input, along with that of all of America's farmers and ranchers, can make a real difference for you and your community.

Your Responsibility.

The census is only conducted once every five years, but it provides valuable information — information used by communities like yours as they plan for their futures. By carefully completing your census form, you are providing data that cannot be collected by any other means, as well as helping NASS to accurately portray the value of agriculture as an industry. Your response, combined with those of your fellow agricultural producers across the country, provide the only source of uniform, comprehensive agricultural data for every county in the nation.

APPLICATIONS FOR USDA SPECIALTY CROP BLOCK GRANT

The Alabama Department of Agriculture and Industries (ADAI) is accepting grant applications for projects that enhance the competitiveness of U.S. specialty crops in foreign and domestic markets.

The application deadline for these grants through the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) is May 4 at 5 p.m. central standard time.

Specialty crops are defined by the USDA as fruits and vegetables, dried fruit, tree nuts, horticulture (including maple syrup and honey) and nursery crops (including floriculture).

Commodity groups, agricultural organizations, colleges and universities, producers, municipalities, state agencies and agricultural nonprofits are all eligible for this grant program, provided their proposals meet all the specifications. The ADAI and a review committee of industry representatives will evaluate and review the applications. After this process is complete, the committee will provide award recommendations.

The specialty crops block grant is a competitive grant process. The maximum award to any applicant is $25,000 and the minimum is $5,000. The ADAI is looking to award multiple grants totaling more than $325,000.

Commissioner of Agriculture and Industries John McMillan said, "The department looks forward to assisting the USDA with this Specialty Crop Block Grant Program. We are honored to be a part of this continued program, which was authorized in the Food, Conservation & Energy Act of 2008, also known as the farm bill."

Projects can't begin until the USDA has made its official award announcement, expected by October 2012.

For more detailed information, please visit <http://agi.alabama.gov/blockgrant> or contact Hassey Brooks at 334-240-3877. All applicants must complete and submit documentation as related to the newly enacted Alabama Immigration Law.

TRACTOR SAFETY

By Tony Burgett
Wildlife Biologist Aide

Alabama Division of Wildlife and Freshwater Fisheries

Hunters and farmers share a love of the outdoors and mutual respect for the land and its resources. Safety also is a primary concern for both hunters and farmers.

Most hunters recognize the apparent dangers associated with hunting. Unfortunately, the same level of safety used while on a treestand often is not shown when operating a tractor. Hunting is recognized as one of the safest outdoor activities; farming is considered one of the most dangerous occupations. However, most farm equipment injuries and deaths are avoidable.

Preventive maintenance of equipment can make it possible to avoid an unnecessary trip to the emergency room. Regardless of experience level, thoroughly reading all owner's manuals will provide an overall understanding of the tractor, its implements, and how each function. Likewise, owner's manuals address matching horsepower ratings with implement size. Incorrect applications have the potential for serious personal injury or permanent equipment damage. Never use larger equipment than designed for your tractor, as rear overload can cause the front end to become dangerously light and increases the possibility of rollover.

Rollover is the leading cause of farm fatalities. The best way to reduce this risk is to always use your seatbelt in conjunction with a rollover protective structure (ROPS). If your tractor is not equipped with both devices, see your dealer for the right application and proper installation.

Another safety measure to prevent rollover is maintaining a balance workload. Position implements near the ground. This is especially important when equipment is loaded, as the tractor may become unbalanced.

Connecting and disconnecting implements poses other dangers. Before changing implements, turn off the engine and allow the power take-off (PTO) shaft to completely stop. PTO covers should be in place and the shaft should be well lubricated.

Performing routine maintenance, checking tire pressure, fluid/oil levels, and greasing fittings and bearings assures proper function and safe operation of both the tractor and implements for years to come.

PRODUCT SPOTLIGHT

The original Dreamland Bar-B-Que concept was originated in Tuscaloosa in 1958. John "Big Daddy" Bishop began serving his legendary ribs and sauce in a small, quaint location in a section of Tuscaloosa known as Jerusalem Heights.

A brick mason by trade, "Big Daddy" spent hours stooped over or down on his knees laying brick. His body wore for the wear and tear, he longed for another means by which to support his family. Local myth has it that "Big Daddy" had narrowed it down to either opening a mortuary or a restaurant. One morning he awoke from a dream in which God had spoken to him. God had directed him to build a little café on the bare land adjoining his home. He felt Dreamland would be the best name for his café.

During the 1970's and 80's it was common for the University of Alabama football games played on the campus of Tuscaloosa to be televised. Visiting sports broadcasters often found their way up the winding hill to Jerusalem Heights and Dreamland for a sample of local flavor. Often they'd end up bragging on their experience at Dreamland during their national broadcasts. These on-air mentions, along with some grassroots marketing efforts by "Big Daddy's" son John Jr., caused Dreamland's notoriety (and revenues) to grow.

Gradually the menu has been expanded to offer customers a full-service bar-b-que experience including chicken, pork sandwiches and side items. Ultimately, though, the focus remains the signature item: The Ribs!

Dreamland now has eight locations across two states. It has taken its world famous bar-b-que to sporting events and shipped its ribs all over the country. For those wanting to experience the flavor at home, Dreamland sauce and spices can be found in local grocery stores or online, and is available for fundraising events.

To find out more about Dreamland, visit www.dreamlandbbq.com where visitors can find the closet Dreamland Bar-B-Que location to them and discover for themselves why there "Ain't nothing like 'em nowhere!"

USDA WARNS OF FRAUDULANT LETTERS

USDA officials recently learned that fraudulent letters are being sent by fax to individuals and businesses in at least four states including Alabama. The letters purportedly come from a USDA procurement officer and seek personal information. These letters are false and in no case should a recipient respond with personal and financial information.

The fraudulent letters bear USDA's logo and seal and are signed by an individual identified as "Frank Rutenberg" using a title of "Senior Procurement Officer." Letters have been received by fax in Alabama, Nebraska, Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, but also may have been sent to other states. Recipients should not respond and should not supply the requested information.

USDA is investigating this matter through the Office of the Inspector General. If you suspect you have received such a letter or have questions, please contact USDA at: procurement.policy@dm.usda.gov or call 202-720-9448.

JACK DELONEY: IMMORTALIZING ALABAMA AGRICULTURE IN WATERCOLOR

He has been painting nearly all of his years and has every intention of continuing to do so. But at the end of this year, Jack Deloney plans to close his art gallery in his native Ozark where his works have been displayed and sold for nearly four decades.

Since graduating in 1964 from Auburn University, Deloney has made his living as an artist. His medium almost has exclusively been watercolors; his subject, Alabama agriculture.

"I live on land that was part of my grandfather's farm, where my father also farmed. Farming, especially farming in the Southeast, has been my subject," Deloney said. "If it wasn't for farmers, I wouldn't have achieved near the success that I have enjoyed."

Commissioner John McMillan recently visited Deloney on a trip to the Wiregrass. "I am a proud owner of at least a few of Jack's works. He speaks to all people of Alabama through his art that words cannot begin to express," McMillan said.

Not surprisingly, Deloney's original paintings and litho prints hang in the homes of hundreds, perhaps thousands, of farmers throughout Alabama and other Southeastern states. Two of his murals hang in the lobby of the Alabama Farmers Federation headquarters in Montgomery.

In faraway Japan, Deloney's work adorns the walls of city hall in Sakado, sister city of Dothan.

As he closes one chapter of his career, Deloney opens another as he plans to continue painting and creating works of art for people who come to him in search of that unique perspective of life and labor in the rural South.
